The history of industrial development of viticulture and winemaking in Dagestan, especially in Derbent, is associated with the name of Peter the 1st. The first government of the Soviet Dagestan attached special importance to viticulture in the socio-economic development of the republic. The implementation of the land and water reforms is considered. Thanks to the land and water reforms in the republic, high-yielding town-forming viticulture state farms were created in those places, where previously unsystematic planting took place. In 1985, the policy of reduction of viticulture and winemaking began for political reasons, in connection with the anti-alcohol campaign, and for economic reasons. The revival of viticulture branch in Dagestan is the task of state importance. In connection with this, the very high priority of the wine industry is given in the strategy of economic development of Dagestan up to 2020.
